History of Konoike Transport Co.,Ltd.

Konoike Transport has roots that go back nearly 130 years. In 1880, in a village called Kitadenpo in which is now part of Osaka, Chujiro Konoike started a business for transporting goods. That business was later incorporated, and Konoike Transport has now been in operation for more than a century. The company has established a large network of bases in Japan and overseas, and continues to expand on a global scale. There is good reason why the company has enjoyed steady development. From the day the company was founded, corporate policy has consistently aimed at customer satisfaction by providing a far broader range of services than just transport. It is this approach that has forged the Konoike tradition. Konoike symbol named “Maru-kita”, which is designed Chinese character “北(Kita)” in the circle, is conveyed that “Kita” has the meaning the “Kitamae ships”, which are necessary and important to transport in the sea in Edo and Meiji period as well as Konoike’s birthplace named “Kita-denpo Village (which is located in Konohana, Osaka city). And the “Maru” means the circle which has the meaning of the harmony in our company.
